Transportation Problems

Says Ocean Combine Extracts Large Sum From Settlers

W. T. R. Preston, investigator of the North Atlantic combine, declares the steamship combine had extracted $50,000,000 from settlers coming to this country. Mr. Preston expressed confidence that there would be a population of 25,000,000 in Canada within twenty years if the people of today assisted in breaking transportation combines on both land and sea.

BAREE, SON OF KAZAN

A LOVE EPIC OF THE FAR NORTH

"BAREE, SON OF KAZAN," a Vitaphone Picture, With Wolf, the War Dog, is an Adaptation of This Story

SYNOPSIS

Bush McTaggart, the factor of Post MacBain, a brutal and unscrupulous schemer, was determined to marry Nepeese, the beautiful Indian "princess," daughter of Pierrot, the trapper. He had tired of Marie, the slim Cree girl who had been his companion. McTaggart's advances were distasteful to Nepeese and aroused the enmity of her father, so the conscienceless factor plotted to do away with Pierrot, if necessary, to win his daughter for himself.

He chuckled again as he made his way through the darkness to the door. Nepeese as good as belonged to him. He would have her if it cost—Pierrot's life. And why not? It was all so easy. A shot on a lonely trap-line, a single knife-thrust—and who would know? Who would guess where Pierrot had gone? And it would be all Pierrot's fault. For the last time he had seen Pierrot, he had made an honest proposition: he would marry Nepeese. Yes, even that. He had told Pierrot so. He had told Pierrot that when the latter was his father-in-law, he would pay him double price for furs.

And Pierrot had stared—had stared with that strange, stunned look in his face, like a man dazed by a blow from a club. And so if he did not get Nepeese without trouble it would all be Pierrot's fault. To-morrow McTaggart would start again for the half-breed's country. And the next day Pierrot would have an answer for him. Bush McTaggart chuckled again when he went to bed.

Until the next to the last day Pierrot said nothing to Nepeese about what had passed between him and the factor at Lac Bain. Then he told her.

"He is a beast—a man-devil," he said, when he had finished. "I would rather see you out there—with her—dead." And he pointed to the tall spruce under which the princess mother lay.

Nepeese had not uttered a sound. But her eyes had grown bigger and darker, and there was a flush in her cheeks which Pierrot had never seen there before. She stood up when he had done, and she seemed taller to him. Never had she looked quite so much like a woman, and Pierrot's eyes were deep-shadowed with fear and uneasiness as he watched her while she gazed off into the northwest—toward Lac Bain.

She was wonderful, this slip of a girl-woman. Her beauty troubled him. He had seen the look in Bush McTaggart's eyes. He had heard the thrill in McTaggart's voice. He had caught

A WOMAN'S SUFFERING

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Verdun, Montreal, Quebec. —"I am one of thousands who have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have great faith in it. I can safely say it has relieved my troubles and I shall never be without a bottle of it in my house. Since my last baby was born I suffered from pains and backache and would feel so tired I could not do anything in my home. Since I have been taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine I feel so different. I recommend it to all my friends and hope it will cure other women who are suffering from the troubles I had."—Mrs. THOS. H. GARDNER, 821 Evelyn Street, Verdun, Montreal, Quebec.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine for the new mother. It is prepared from roots and herbs, contains no harmful drugs, and can be taken by the nursing mother.

Its worth in restoring the mother to normal health and strength is told again and again in just such letters as Mrs. Gardner writes.

A recent canvass of women users of the Vegetable Compound shows that 98 out of every 100 women taking the medicine are benefited by it. They write and tell us so. Such evidence entitles us to call it a dependable medicine for women. It is for sale by druggists everywhere.

of Wapoo, who was having his vengeance inside him. For the life of him Baree could not keep from darning about, while the wire grew tighter and tighter about his neck. When he snapped at the whip and flung the weight of his body to the ground, the sapling would bend obligingly, and then—in its rebound—would yank him for an instant completely off the earth. Furiously he struggled. It was a miracle that the fine wire held him. In a few moments more it must have broken—but McTaggart had heard him! The factor caught up his blanket and a heavy stick as he hurried toward the snare. It was not a rabbit snaking those sounds—he knew that. Perhaps a fisher-cat—a lynx, a fox, a young wolf—

It was the wolf he thought of first when he saw Baree at the end of the wire. He dropped the blanket and raised the club. If there had been clouds overhead, or the stars had been less brilliant, Baree would have died as surely as Wapoo had died. With the club raised over his head McTaggart saw in time the white star, the white-tipped ear, and the jet black of Baree's coat.

With a swift movement he exchanged the club for the blanket.

In that hour, could McTaggart have looked ahead to the days that were to come, he would have used the club.

CHAPTER XII.

Half an hour later Bush McTaggart's fire was burning brightly again. In the glow of it Baree lay trussed up like an Indian papoose, tied into a balloon-shaped ball with babiche thong, his head alone showing where his captor had cut a hole for it in the blanket. He was hopelessly caught—so closely impaled in the blanket that he could scarcely move a muscle of his body. A few feet away from him McTaggart was bathing a bleeding hand in a basin of water. There was also a red streak down the side of McTaggart's bulging neck.

"You little devil!" he snarled at Baree. "You little devil!"

He reached over suddenly and gave Baree's head a vicious blow with his heavy hand.

"I ought to beat your brains out—and I leave it with you!"

The stick fell. It fell again and again, and when McTaggart was done, Baree lay half stunned, his eyes partly closed by the blows, and his mouth bleeding.

"That's the way to take the devil out of a wild dog," snarled McTaggart. "I guess you won't try the biting game again, eh, youngster? A thousand devils—but you went almost to the bone of this hand!"

He began washing the wound again. Baree's teeth had sunk deep, and there was a troubled look in the factor's face. It was July—a bad month for bites. From his left he got a small flask of whiskey and turned a lit of the raw liquor on the wound, cursing Baree as it burned into his flesh.

Baree's half-shut eyes were fixed on him steadily. He knew that at last he had met the deadliest of all his enemies. And yet he was not afraid. The club in Bush McTaggart's hand had not killed his spirit. It had killed his fear. It had roused in him a hatred such as he had never known—not even when he was fighting Oohoomskew, the outlaw wolf. The vengeful animosity of the wolf was burning in him now, along with the savage courage of the dog. He did not flinch when McTaggart approached him again. He made an effort to raise himself, that he might spring at this man-monster. In the effort, swaddled up as he was in the blanket, he rolled over in a helpless and ludicrous heap.

They began to journey before the sun was up, for if Baree's blood was almost dead within him, Bush McTaggart's was scorching his body with the heat of his anticipation. He made his last plans as he walked swiftly through the forest with Baree under his arm. He would send Pierrot at once for Father Groin at the Mission seventy miles to the west. He would marry Nepeese—yes, marry her! That would tickle Pierrot. And he would be alone with Nepeese while Pierrot was gone for the missioner.

This thought flamed McTaggart's blood like strong whiskey. There was no thought in his hot and unreasoning brain of what Nepeese might say—of what she might think. He was not after the soul of her. His hand clenched, and he laughed harshly as there flashed on him for an instant the thought that Pierrot would not want to give her up. Pierrot! Bah! It would not be the first time he had killed a man—or the second.

McTaggart laughed again, and he walked the faster. There was no chance of his losing—no chance for Nepeese to get away from him. He—Bush McTaggart—was lord of this wilderness, master of its people, arbiter of their destinies. He was power—and the law.

The sun was well up when Pierrot, standing in front of his cabin with Nepeese, pointed to a rise in the trail three or four hundred yards away, over which McTaggart had just appeared.

"He is coming."

With a face which had aged since last night he looked at Nepeese. Again he saw the dark glow in her eyes and the deepening red of her parted lips, and his heart was sick again with dread. Was it possible—She turned on him, her eyes shining, her voice trembling.

"Remember, Nootawe—you must send him to me for his answer," she cried quickly, and she darted into the cabin. With a cold, gray face Pierrot faced Bush McTaggart.

CHAPTER XIII.

From the window, her face screened by the folds of the curtain which she had made for it, the Willow saw what happened outside. She was not smiling now. She was breathing quickly, and her body was tense. Bush McTaggart paused not a dozen feet from the window and shook hands with Pierrot, her father. She heard McTaggart's coarse voice, his boisterous greeting, and then she saw him showing Pierrot what he carried under his arm. There came to her distinctly his explanation of how he had caught his captive in a rabbit-snare. He unwrapped the blanket. Nepeese gave a cry of amazement. In an instant she was out beside them. She did not look at McTaggart's red face, blazing in his joy and exultation.

"It is Baree!" she cried.

She took the bundle from McTaggart and turned to Pierrot. "Tell him that Baree belongs to me," she said.

On the floor of the cabin Nepeese dropped on her knees and finished unwrapping the blanket. She was not afraid of Baree. And then, as Baree rolled in a limp heap on the floor, she saw his half-closed eyes and the dry blood on his jaws, and the light left her face as swiftly as the sun is shadowed by a cloud.

"Baree," she cried softly. "Baree—Baree!"

She partly lifted him in her two hands. Baree's head sagged. His body was numb until he was powerless to move. His legs were without feeling. He could scarcely see. He heard her voice. It was a voice that had come to him that day he had felt the sting of the bullet, the voice that had pleaded with him under the rock!

The voice of the Willow thrilled Baree. It seemed to stir the sluggish blood in his veins, and he opened his eyes wider and saw again the wonderful stars that had glowed at him so softly the day of Wakayoo's death. One of the Willow's long braids fell over her shoulder, and he smelled again the sweet scent of her hair as her hand caressed him and her voice talked to him. Then she got up suddenly and left him, and he did not move while he waited for her. In a moment she was back with a basin of water and a cloth. Gently she washed the blood from his eyes and mouth. He scarcely breathed. But Nepeese saw the little quivers that shot through his body when her hand touched him, like electric shocks.

"He beat you with a club," she was saying, her dark eyes within a foot of Baree's. "He beat you! That man-beast!"

There came an interruption. The door opened, and the man-beast stood looking down on them, a grin on his red face. Instantly Baree showed that he was alive. He sprang back from under the Willow's hand with a sudden snarl and faced McTaggart. The hair of his spine stood up like a brush; his fangs gleamed menacingly.

For COLIC AND CRAMPS PAINS IN THE STOMACH There's Nothing Equals

There were undeniable little devils in her eyes, McTaggart thought—little devils laughing full at him as she spoke, setting his brain afire and his blood to running wildly. Those eyes—full of dancing witches! How he would tame them and play with them—very soon now. He followed Pierrot outside. In his exultation he no longer felt the smart of Baree's teeth.

Half an hour later Nepeese came out of the cabin. She could see that Pierrot and the factor had been talking about something that had not been pleasant to her father. His face was strained. She caught in his eyes the smoulder of fire which he was trying to smother, as one might smother flames under a blanket. McTaggart's jaws were set, but the eyes flared up with pleasure when he saw her. She knew what it was about. The factor from Lac Bain had been demanding his answer of Pierrot, and Pierrot had been telling him what she had insisted upon—that he must come to her. And he was coming! She turned with a quick beating of the heart and hurried down a little path. She heard McTaggart's footsteps be-and his eyes burned like living coals.

"There is a devil in him," said McTaggart. "He is wild—born of the wolf. You must be careful or he will take off a hand, ka sakahet!" It was the first time he had called her that lover's name in Cree—sweetheart! Her heart pounded. She bent her head for a moment over her clenched hands, and McTaggart—looking down on what he thought her confusion—laid his hand caressingly on her hair.

From the door Pierrot had heard the word, and now he saw the caress, and he raised a hand as if to shut out the sight of a sacrifice.

"Mon Dieu!" he breathed.

In the next instant he had given a sharp cry of wonder that mingled with a sudden yell of pain from McTaggart. Like a flash Baree had darted across the floor and fastened his teeth in the factor's leg. They had bitten deep before McTaggart freed himself with a powerful kick. With an oath he snatched his revolver from his holster. The Willow was ahead of him. With a little cry she darted to Baree and caught him in her arms. As she looked up at McTaggart, her soft, bare throat was within the grasp of Baree's naked fangs. Her eyes blazed.

"You beat him!" she cried. "He hates you—hates you!"

"Let him go!" called Pierrot in an agony of fear.

"Mon Dieu! I say let him go, or he will tear the life from you!"

"He hates you—hates you—hates you!" the Willow was repeating over and over again into McTaggart's startled face. Then suddenly to her father, "No, he will not tear the life from me," she cried. "See! It is Baree. Did I not tell you that? It is Baree! Is it not proof that he defended me?"

"From me!" gasped McTaggart, his face darkening.

Pierrot advanced and laid a hand on McTaggart's arm. He was smiling.

"Let us leave them to fight it out between themselves, m'sieu," he said. "They are two little fire-brands, and we are not safe. If she is bitten—"

He shrugged his shoulders. A great load had been lifted from them suddenly. His voice was soft and persuasive. And now the anger had gone out of the Willow's face. A coquettish uplift of her eyes caught McTaggart, and she looked straight at him, half smiling, as she spoke to her father:

"I will join you soon, mon pere—you and M'sieu the Factor from Lac Bain!"

There were undeniable little devils in her eyes, McTaggart thought—little devils laughing full at him as she spoke, setting his brain afire and his blood to running wildly. Those eyes—full of dancing witches! How he would tame them and play with them—very soon now. He followed Pierrot outside. In his exultation he no longer felt the smart of Baree's teeth.

Half an hour later Nepeese came out of the cabin. She could see that Pierrot and the factor had been talking about something that had not been pleasant to her father. His face was strained. She caught in his eyes the smoulder of fire which he was trying to smother, as one might smother flames under a blanket. McTaggart's jaws were set, but the eyes flared up with pleasure when he saw her. She knew what it was about. The factor from Lac Bain had been demanding his answer of Pierrot, and Pierrot had been telling him what she had insisted upon—that he must come to her. And he was coming! She turned with a quick beating of the heart and hurried down a little path. She heard McTaggart's footsteps behind her, and threw the flash of a smile over her shoulder. But her teeth were set tight. The nails of her fingers were cutting into the palms of her hands.

Pierrot stood without moving. He watched them as they disappeared into the forest, Nepeese still a few steps ahead of McTaggart. Out of his breast rose a sharp breath.

"Par les mille cornes du diable!" he swore softly. "It is impossible—that she smiles from her heart at that beast? No! It is impossible. And yet—if it is so—"

One of his brown hands tightened convulsively about the handle of the knife in his belt, and slowly he began to follow them.

McTaggart did not hurry to overtake Nepeese. She was following the narrow path deeper into the forest, and he was glad of that. They would be alone—away from Pierrot. He was ten steps behind her, and again the Willow smiled at him over her shoulder. Her body moved sinuously and swiftly. She was keeping accurate measurement of the distance between them—but McTaggart did not guess that this was why she looked back every now and then. He was satisfied to let her go on. When she turned from the narrow trail into a side path that scarcely bore the mark of travel, his heart gave an exultant jump. If she kept on, he would very soon have her alone—a good distance from the cabin. The blood ran hot in his face. He did not speak to her, through fear that she would stop. Ahead of them he heard the rumble of water. It was the creek running through the chasm.

Nepeese was making straight for that sound. With a little laugh she started to run, and when she stood at the edge of the chasm, McTaggart was fully fifty yards behind her. Twenty feet sheer. Down there was a deep pool between the rock walls, a pool so deep that it was like blue ink. She turned to face the factor from Lac Bain. He had never looked more like a red beast to her. Until this moment she had been unafraid. But now—in an instant—she terrified her. Before she could speak what she had planned to say, he was at her side, and had taken her face between his two great hands, his coarse fingers twining in the silken strands of her thick braids where they fell over her shoulders at the neck.

"Ka sakahet!" he cried passionately. "Pierrot said you would have an answer for me. But I need no answer now. You are mine! Mine!"

She gave a cry. It was a gasping, broken cry. His arms were about her like bands of iron, crushing her slender body, shutting off her breath, turning the world almost black for her. She could neither struggle nor cry out. She felt the hot passion of his lips on her face, heard his voice—and then came a moment's freedom, and air into her strangled lungs. Pierrot was calling! He had come to the fork in the trail, and he was calling the Willow's name!

McTaggart's hot hand came over her mouth.

"Don't answer," she heard him say. Strength—anger—hatred flared up in her, and fiercely she struck the hand down. Something in her wonderful eyes held McTaggart. They blazed into his very soul.

"Bete noir!" she panted at him, freeing herself from the last touch of his hands. "Beast—black beast!" Her voice trembled, and her face flamed.

"See—I came to show you my pool—and tell you what you wanted to hear—and you—you—have crushed me like a beast—like a great rock— See! down there—it is my pool!"

Ready-made Medicine.—You need no physician for ordinary ills when you have at hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchial troubles, it is invaluable; for scalds, burns, bruises, sprains it is unsurpassed; while for cuts, sores and the like it is an unquestionable healer. It needs no testimonial other than the use, and that will satisfy anyone as to its effectiveness.

Help for Nervous People

Are you pale and weak, tired most of the time, out of breath on slight exertion?

Are you nervous, is your sleep disturbed so that rest does not refresh you?

Is your appetite poor, your digestion weak and do you have pains after eating?

If you have any of these symptoms you need the help of such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Read what Mr. W. W. Francis, of Calgary, Alta., says of this tonic. "After returning from overseas," writes Mr. Francis, "my whole system was in a badly run down condition. I became nervous, irritable, pale and lost weight. Of course I was given treatment and recommended many tonics, some of which I took, but with no apparent result. At last I could not sleep. My sister, who is in England, wrote and urged me to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial, and I can scarcely say how glad I am that I took her advice. My friends were surprised at my complete recovery, but I assured them it was due entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I now always keep a box in hand in case of emergency."

Wherever you find a person who has taken Dr. Williams' Pink Pills faithfully you find an enthusiastic friend of the tonic that has made life mean more in many ways. These blood-making pills have been used by three generations of Canadians and in almost every community, however small, can be found those who owe health and happiness to this famous household remedy.

Weak and Run Down

"I wish from my heart I could persuade every person who is run down in health to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a trial." Thus writes Mrs. Louie Mitchell, Oak Point, Man., who further says:—"About a year ago I was a weak woman, suffering from a run down system and impoverished blood. Any little exertion would cause my legs to tremble and my heart to throb violently. I could not sweep a room or walk fifty feet without being exhausted. Then I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and after taking only six boxes I am as well and strong as ever. I can walk and run without stopping every few seconds gasping for breath as previously. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be my standby in the future if ever my blood needs building up again, and I shall always be recommending them to anyone needing a tonic."

GLEICHEN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY

As Gleichen grows and prospers it likewise increases the value of its contiguous agricultural territory. This fact needs no magnifying to the discerning farmer. He at once recognizes that his property is enhanced in value by its proximity to a live progressive town with good schools, churches, business houses and other places conveniently at hand. Transversely, of course, the town profits from being located in a fertile, thrifty and progressive farming community. The town and its countryside are relatively in this class and the businessmen and tradesmen recognize and appreciate this fact and are endeavoring to promote and maintain a live policy that will rebound to the mutual welfare of all concerned.

Judging from the reports coming from all parts of the country, Canada is on the eve of more satisfactory times. "There is a tide in the affairs of town (as well as men) which, if taken at the flood leads on to fortune." The town or community, therefore, which is in the best position to take advantage of that change when it comes is the one that is going to reap the most benefit. Let us, then get our house in order here and be in shape to take advantage of opportunities which are bound to present themselves in the not very distant future.

The retail merchants who know no business "summer complaint" are those who have learned the value of newspaper advertising and knowing the means obtain the desired results. The buying public appreciates the merchants who have something to offer them and who tell them of their offers through the medium of newspaper advertising. There is no end to the public's needs so it follows that a summer slump in business denies the public a continuous gratification of its needs and desires.

The attractive thing about a fashion is that its features are plainly apparent to the one who would follow it, and has to do little or no thinking on the subject himself. It is clear, therefore, that those who shrink from mental activity and creative thought will be found among the ones who most closely cling to the accepted "school" or fashion.

GLEICHEN BAND CONCERT

If practice makes perfect, then the Gleichen Band Boys should certainly be in fine trim for their band concert next Wednesday evening November 4th in the Gleichen Community Hall, for they certainly are everlastingly at it. At the political meetings last week the boys played each night and on every hand congratulatory remarks were heard on the great improvement they have been making.

Already many tickets have been disposed of for this concert and good advice would be to buy your ticket early as without a doubt there will be a big crowd present to hear them.

The concert is to be followed by a dance which will also be one of the very best of the season. The program follows.

Owing to the frequency of Farm Fires, the attention of Farmers is especially drawn to the very low rates charged for insurance of grain whilst stored in barns or granaries. The result of a year's work is often swept away in an hour, and every farmer should protect himself by carrying a policy with

Here and There

In the last fiscal year 3,843 homestead entries were granted in the Prairie Provinces, aggregating an approximate area of 614,880 acres, while, in addition, 710 soldier grants of 113,600 acres, make up a grand total of 728,480 acres so settled.

In 1915 Canada exported no wheat to China. In 1918 she sent only eight bushels to Japan. In 1924 China imported over 5,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat and over 1,500,000 barrels of flour, while Japan took 7,000,000 bushels of wheat and 110,000 barrels of flour. It is predicted these figures will be well beaten for the current year.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid Championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will be competed for at the Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, November 15. The champions in a knock-out competition among Eastern and Western teams respectively, will fight it out for the trophy.

Plans are already being laid to make the 1925 Eastern International Dog sled Derby an even greater success than in any previous year, and it is reported that the prize money will be considerably increased next winter, with the object of attracting more teams and mushers from the West and the United States.

Fire Prevention Week, October 4-10, was observed throughout the Dominion, and to mark the sense of the importance of the occasion Mr. Grant Hall, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, broadcast an appeal by wire to every officer and employee of the system "to co-operate as in the past and set a good example by thoroughly cleaning up all premises."

Canada's great outlook, says a recent issue of the London Outlook, is that she wants more people, but of the right type, namely, sturdy agricultural workers with enterprise, initiative and endurance. Enthusiastic letters from emigrants under the joint scheme of settling 3,000 families in Canada are bound to have their healthy effect on relatives and friends dissatisfied with their lot in England.

E. F. L. Sturdee, general Passenger Agent for the Orient of the C.P.R., with headquarters at Hong Kong, has been appointed Assistant General Passenger Agent of the system at Montreal. His duties commenced here in October. He was relieved of his other work owing to ill-health, but the climate of Canada soon restored him to physical well-being. He has a long record of service with the C.P.R., dating back to his first appointment at Saint John in 1894.

Sixty bushels of wheat at every tick of the clock is the rate at which the Canadian Pacific Railway have carried the grain into the elevators this season. To keep up this unprecedented rush, it has been necessary to move one car-load of grain out of Winnipeg at every one minute and twenty-three seconds of the twenty-four hour day. Grain delivered at the head of the lakes by the Canadian Pacific in September, alone would fill a fleet of 200 ships, each with a cargo of 200,000 bushels.

Back from an extended tour of inspection over the company's western lines, E. W. Beatty, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, found a very marked improvement in the West as compared with that which had existed when he last went across the country. He thought the spirit of the people was much more optimistic and with very good reason since he considered it safe to say that 380,000,000 bushels was not too high an estimate for the total Canadian wheat yield this year. He noticed throughout the country a sustained interest in immigration and a more general realization that therein lay the soundest remedy for most of Canada's difficulties.

Just when the threshers got going nicely along came another snow fall, last Saturday, but the weather remained cold and quite a few kept on threshing, the snow shaking off quite easily in the handling. However, only the larger heavy machines were able to keep going and the lighter ones are forced to remain idle, not a few letting their men go. So long as the weather remains cold work will continue but the moment there is a change there will be another delay in operations all over.

TOWN AND DISTRICT

The quietest election Gleichen ever knew so far—let's wait things up tomorrow fellows.

A. Moe left his home last week having received a telegram that his brother had been accidentally killed.

O. L. Spencer, advertising manager of the Calgary Herald, passed through Gleichen Sunday with a party of friends. They had been hunting geese north of Brooks, but said the luck was mostly in "hunting."

It is about time someone said something to encourage the return of sunny southern Alberta—don't all but first.

All that's left now is the voting—make a good job of that.

The Raysay Mercantile Ltd. and in this issue will be read with interest by all those who are about the customers coming from a distance.

Business as usual after tomorrow, but my, the disappointments all over the great Dominion.

The postponed meeting of the Gleichen Women's Institute will be held next Tuesday evening, Nov. 3rd in the Gleichen Community Hall Club rooms, at 8 p.m.

Mrs. J. Kobel returned last week after spending a couple of weeks in Calgary.

The Canadian Red Cross Society, Alberta division, has set October 31 for Red Cross Day 1925, and are appealing for assistance for the varied departments under which the society is accomplishing such excellent work. The Gleichen branch is considering their plans and will no doubt have an announcement for our next issue.

It would never do to report the speeches of the politicians in this issue as it will surely be in the hands of our readers before the election is over, and would not be appreciated.

More than 1600 head of cattle were disposed of at the auction sale held in connection with the annual Stocker and Breeder Show held in Calgary last week. The high price of the sale went to J. L. Walters of Clive, whose carload won the grand championship of the show, and was sold to P. Burns Co. at a rate of $7.10 per hundred. Mr. Walters' car of shorthorns, which won the reserve champion, was sold at $7 per hundred. Savage Bros. of Big Valley, received $7 per hundred for a group of five steers. A carload of 20 steers owned by Usher Bros. of Scollard, went for $6.90 per hundred.

LIB-CONSERVATIVE MEETING VERY INTERESTING

Last Wednesday night W. J. Douglas, the Liberal-Conservative candidate for Bow River constituency, was greeted by a good crowd in the Gleichen Community Hall, and given a very attentive hearing all through his interesting discussion. He proved a very entertaining speaker and kept the attention of his hearers as he flayed first the Liberals and then the U.F.A. candidates opposing him, and presented the great advantages he believed in store for the Dominion if Mr. Meighan and his followers headed the polls on the 29th of October. He touched upon nearly all of the many questions that are being discussed during this campaign and brought out many convincing arguments, showing himself to be well versed in the different subjects.

Mr. Douglas was accompanied by Mr. W. Henderson, who admitted to being Scotch, an empire builder, mine operator, supporter of Mr. Meighan and Mr. Douglas, as well as a Salvation Army soldier. His main object was to defend Mr. Douglas concerning a mean report that had been started to the effect that Mr. Douglas had been a "bootlegger", which Mr. Henderson vigorously denied, having intimately known the candidate since his arrival in Alberta a number of years ago, and stated Mr. Douglas was a man of honor and fairness in every particular.

Half holiday tomorrow.

The Chautauqua dance, at the Meadowsbrook Hall last Friday evening proved a good success in every particular, there being many present from town and district. Another Chautauqua dance will be given in the Gleichen Community Hall shortly.

With due ceremony, the inauguration of the continent wide phone service from Alberta was celebrated the past week when Governor Brett of Alberta conversed over the long distance phone with state heads in the States of Montana, Colorado and Arizona, and with Chief Justice Anglin at Ottawa, Canada. The inauguration of this service, by which Alberta telephone subscribers will be able to converse with any point in United States and with many points in Eastern and Western Canada and on the coast, was made possible through the co-operation of the Mountain States Telephone Co., with the Alberta Government Telephones. Repeaters have been installed at Lethbridge, Calgary and Medicine Hat, and copper circuits set up from

E. J. GARLAND WAS WELL RECEIVED HERE

On Thursday night Mr. J. E. Garland, U.F.A. candidate for Bow River Constituency spoke in the Gleichen Community Hall to the largest crowd that has yet attended a political meeting in this town during the present campaign, many farmers coming in to hear him.

He was given a very attentive hearing, despite the fact that a few weeks ago his followers in this district stated that they were opposed to his speaking in Gleichen, as they feared the people of this town might not attend or give him a respectful hearing. However, not once was he interrupted in his speech. Indeed from the time Mr. Frank Daw took the chair until the close of the meeting no one could have asked for a more respectful hearing.

Mr. Garland is easily the greatest orator who has spoken in Gleichen for a long time, and has improved wonderfully since he entered the political arena. He used the choicest English and it was indeed a pleasure to listen to him. He numerically scored his opponents, the government and the Meighan policy. He spent much time in a report of his four years stewardship at Ottawa, and gave his reasons for not supporting the government on many points and why he did on others. At the close he invited any person who desired to come on the platform and speak, but none took advantage of the offer.

Mr. J. Q. Buckley, M. L. A., addressed the meeting for a short time at the opening of the meeting.

Mrs. M. Buckley will open her "Beauty Parlor" opposite the station next Monday. Read her ad.

Oct. 30 and 31—"The Meddler" and "Crested Gull Mystery" at the Gleichen Theatre.

Lethbridge to the boundary of Montana, linking up with the copper circuits extended north from Shelby, Montana. This has made possible the connection with the transcontinental system of the states.

In connection with the historical step taken by the Alberta Government Telephones it is interesting to note that long distance service in the province has grown from 1,000,000 to 2,500,000 calls in the past ten years and that in that time the revenue from long distance service has grown from $393,300 per annum to over $1,000,000 per annum.

The first commercial call over the new universal system was given from Edmonton on Wednesday night, when a resident of Edmonton conversed with a friend in Minneapolis, Minn.

ARMISTICE DAY CHURCH SERVICES, SUNDAY NOVEMBER 8

A special Armistice Day church service will be held on Sunday, November 8th, in the Gleichen Community Hall, at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, at which the 22nd Battery will be present in honor of those members of the 22nd Battery C.E.F. who answered the roll call on Flanders Fields. All returned soldiers of the district are requested to parade with the Battery on this occasion. The parade will fall in at the Armoury at 2 o'clock p.m. sharp. Permission has been granted for all ex-members of His Majesty's Air, Sea and Land forces to wear uniforms and medals on this date. If not in possession of a uniform, mufti may be worn with medals. Major McGlashen, late Imperial Army, will be in command of the returned soldier section of the parade. A combined service will be held in the Community Hall with Rev. Mr. Bevan of the United Church and Rev. Mr. Blunt of the Anglican Church, both returned soldiers, officiating. The general public is cordially invited to attend this service in honor of the fallen comrades.

A PLEASANT EVENT NEAR CLUNY

A very pleasant event took place last Thursday afternoon, at Hazel-dene Ranch, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Clark, when the ladies of Cluny and vicinity were invited to a farewell luncheon given in honor of Mrs. Fred J. Clarke, of the Blackfoot Reserve, who leaves shortly for her new home in Griswold, Manitoba. About twenty-five guests sat down to the table, which was beautifully done in purple and gold, chrysanthemums of the same colors filling the room. After a dainty luncheon served, Mrs. E. Courtney presented the guest of honor with a cut glass bowl and nappies to match, and in a few well chosen words expressed the regret of her departure and their best wishes for her future happiness. Mrs. Clarke who was completely taken by surprise replied feelingly, and assured the donors that no change of surroundings would effect her regard for her Cluny friends, nor make her forget the pleasant days spent among them. A short time was spent in conversation, enlivened by music and songs, after which the gathering broke up, expressing much appreciation of Mrs. Duncan Clark's kind hospitality.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred J. Clarke have resided on the Blackfoot Reserve for the past twelve years and Mr. Clarke is now leaving to take the position of agent at Griswold, Man.

British Journalists Give Impressions of Canada

Having completed a ten-thousand-mile tour of Canada from coast to coast and return at the invitation of E. W. Reilly, chairman and president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, ten British journalists representing papers from London, Western England, Wales, Glasgow and Belfast, now broadcast to Canadians their views of the Dominion. These journalists were asked to come to this country to study at first hand the economic, commercial, industrial and agricultural conditions of the Dominion and to thus enable them to meet and combat from their own knowledge the misunderstanding and misrepresentation of Canada and Canadian conditions that have been prevalent in the Old Country of late months. Their trip was an unequalled success from every point of view. The impressions follow—

R. A. COLWILL,
Western Morning
News, Plymouth.

"Canada has given me a true appreciation of what is meant by great open spaces. The possibilities of this vast country are enormous, and you have as yet barely scratched the surface of its wealth. It is a land which offers great opportunities to men of the right type, but this great Dominion is obviously a young man's country, and one where every man must work. You ask no questions as to his antecedents. You merely ask him to carve out his own career. You take a man for what he himself is worth, not for what his father was. In such a land a man who is a man can work and be happy."

W. D. RENTON,
Daily Chronicle,
London.

"Canada's supreme confidence in her future greatness has made a deep impression upon me. Only men possessed of great vision and almost overpowering energy would have laid so soundly and on such comprehensive lines the foundations which we have everywhere seen for the coming of a great civilization. The nobly planned parliament buildings, the ambitious university institutions, the network of railways, harbor facilities, vast water powers, electricity schemes, irrigation works, and cities planned out on princely lines, have been conceived for a great tomorrow. Canada is shouldering financial and other burdens in this task of Empire building which call for sympathy and admiration. It is the white man's burden in the world. One stands amazed that so few people should have accomplished so much in so short a time which encompassed Canada's history."

J. A. CHAPTER,
Westminster
Gazette, London.

increase if those whose chief desire is get rich quick and quit."

CAPT. E. ALTHAM,
C.B., R.N.,
Morning Post,
London.

Canada's growing exports and imports is becoming better appreciated. (8) Canada is a land where men must be men indeed, no wasters, agitators, or traitors to King, Flag and Empire, need apply. That is my predominant impression."

F. G. R. PETERSON,
Times, London.

"At the end of a long journey, in the course of which we have crossed the Dominion twice and travelled nearly ten thousand miles, we are returning to our homes deeply impressed with the immense resources of Canada. We have seen life and conditions of labor in the Maritimes, in the industrial centres of the East, on the prairies and at the Pacific Coast. We have set ourselves to learn something of the twin problems of men and markets which face the Canadian people, and the experience which we have thus gained will be of inestimable advantage to us in the future. It will enable us to set the proper value on items of news from the Dominion, to refute baseless charges against its own good name, to make known to the young men of our own country the splendid opportunities that await them, in short, so far as lies within our power, to tell the Motherland the truth about Canada."

H. S. READ,
South Wales News,
Cardiff.

transform them from conditions of penury into shares of exhaustless wealth, and in so doing to strengthen the Empire. We are greatly indebted to the Canadian Pacific Railway for their invitation to make the tour."

HUGH MARTIN,
Daily News, London.

"Every province of Canada claims that it is the land of opportunity. I believe that each is entitled to make that claim and that the opportunity is for more people who are willing to work primarily on the land and are determined to succeed. The vast open spaces must be populated. As a Scotchman who has met many old countrymen on this wonderful tour via the Canadian Pacific Railway across the Dominion I should like to see a large influx of immigrants belonging to the race which played such a noble part in the pioneer work in the land of promise of the Old Country can still produce that type. What prevents them from coming? They lack the means, not the desire. I believe that if our home government and the Dominion Government could agree to assist them to a greater extent than has hitherto been done, the main obstacle to the flow of Scottish immigration into Canada would be removed. The people must be found, if not from the Old Land then taken from elsewhere, but I think you would prefer the old stock."

JOHN A. BUIST,
Glasgow Herald.

"I became more and more impressed with the boundless possibilities of this great Dominion every day of my tour. From Halifax to Vancouver that impression grew from wonder to amazement. Surely for a man who will work and for the woman who will help him there is no land so rich in resources, so full of opportunities. All honor, then, to the brave men who made this possible, to the pioneers who blazed a nation's way through brush and canyon, who adventured over river and lake and prairie, and to the Canadian statesmen whose vision was not that of ordinary men."

CHAS. J. JOERY,
Daily Telegraph,
London.

"Canada fills me with wonder and admiration. That a comparatively small population should have accomplished so much in so short a time is marvellous, and from what I have seen I am convinced that the tapping of the Dominion's resources, particularly of Alberta and British Columbia, has only begun. If the two urgent needs of men and capital—British if possible—can be supplied, there seems to be no limit to the future of the country. I am impressed by the loyalty, the beauty, and the pluck of Canada, and I take off my hat to the courage of the early explorers and settlers. They laid foundations upon which it should be an honor to be to-day. Floreat Canada."

JOHN SAYERS,
Belfast Telegraph.

tions upon which it should be an honor to be to-day. Floreat Canada."

The Farmer's Wife Should Have a Bank Account

ON most farms the hens and other poultry are the special care of the farmer's wife, and the money that comes from this source is regarded as her own.

This money, if deposited regularly in a Savings Account, will soon grow to a considerable sum. Several hundred dollars in the Bank will give a wonderful feeling of security.

Here and There

"Canada has the greatest opportunity of any community on the face of the earth," stated B. Lee Strachy, editor and proprietor of the London Spectator, in the course of a recent address before the Canadian Club. He stressed the advantages the country enjoyed in her large, almost inexhaustible electrical energy, wood pulp and mineral assets.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 men are expected to work in the forests of the Province of Quebec during the coming winter, according to the chief forester of the province. It is anticipated there will be a good season in the pulp and paper products, but that the cost of lumber will not be so heavy owing to the low prices prevalent for saws lumber.

Cordial relations between the ports of Quebec and Liverpool were emphasized recently by the exchange of cables by the respective Chief Magistrates of the two cities. The occasion was the Civic Week Celebration at Liverpool when the Lord Mayor, Thomas Dowd, sent Mayor Joseph Samson, of Quebec, greetings to which the latter responded.

A record for October weddings was established at the Windsor Station, Montreal, early in that month, when twenty couples invaded the concourse on their way to Boston, Quebec, Ottawa and Toronto. Two of the bridegrooms were bidden following time-honoured custom. It used to be the fashion to subject brides to this usage, but since the advent of short skirts the practice has been frowned upon.

Establishing what is easily a world record for movement of wheat, grain moved into Port William and Port Arthur elevators at the rate of nearly thirty bushels a second for the whole of the 24 hours of October 8, on Canadian Pacific Railway cars. In all, 1794 cars were unloaded during the day, each car carrying an average load of 1,500 bushels, representing a total of 2,694,000 bushels.

Driving into stationary trains on level crossings seems to be a favorite sport of a part of a number of motorists judging by reports coming in recently from different sections. The latest is from Galt, where an automobile, in head-on collision, ran into a freight train consisting of 18 loaded and 15 empty cars standing in plain view of the crossing. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the incident is another of gross carelessness on the part of motorists.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was won by the Weston Shop team, of Winnipeg, champions of the West, against McAdams, N.B., team, champions of the East and last year's winners, after a searching test of the two teams conducted at the Place Vigor Hotel, Montreal, recently. The margin between the two teams was so narrow as to be in doubt to the last moment. Weston took 567 points out of a possible 672 and McAdams had 498.

Tourist traffic development throughout Canada has reached such proportions as to equal the value of a fairly good wheat crop, and such development has only just begun, in the opinion of Colonel Paul Moore, of Yale Valley, B.C., interviewed recently. He estimated an estimate of three hundred million dollars paid by tourists annually in Canada was not too high. "Growth of interest in the Canadian Rockies was very noticeable and although the majority of tourists come from the States, yet Canadians, too, were beginning to favour them, said the Colonel."

RETURNED SOLDIERS BANQUET ON ARMISTICE NIGHT WEDNESDAY, NOV. 11TH

SHOULDICE NOTES

(From Our Own Correspondent)
Shouldice is losing one of its best citizens in the transfer of Mr. Shoebottom to Crowfoot, by the Alberta Pacific Grain Co. He was sent to Shouldice about a year ago from Chumby where he had been running the A. F. elevator for some years. He was well liked and all will miss him greatly. But we all wish him luck in his new location.

After seeking and enquiring since early fall for a farm for sale near Shouldice Mrs. M. D. Wilson has had to purchase land near the Union Jack school and is quite disappointed as he did not like to move away from the Shouldice district, where he has been a renter for some years. But wishing to farm land of his own he has done the best he could and purchased a farm in a good district, although he knew Shouldice but could not find a distasteful land owner.

The Lloyd George Hotel has received a fresh coat of paint and with the large letters no one can fail to find the hotel.

Ralph Sailer, of the Shouldice blacksmith shop, is giving splendid service which is sure to increase his business. Mr. Sailer says some recently employed in the Robt blacksmith shop in Gleichen.

The Home Elevator Co. have moved an elevator to Shouldice, and are now ready to handle grain.

Mr. and Mrs. Leachman are the proud parents of a son.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McRae announce the arrival of a daughter.

With the new arrivals the population is increasing.

School will open about the first of the year.

The Women's Institute had a business meeting on Wednesday, September 21st at the home of Mrs. Hall.

Miss Florence Schellwell has left for home at Moorhous, having visited her brothers Gilbert since last summer.

Two dollars will pay new subscribers to the end of 1922.
